

Advancements in vaccine development have helped combat diseases, saving millions of lives globally.